UGC has asked NAAC to have accreditation framework for Open Universities: Dr Singh

By Vikas Vaidya

SIMPLICITY is his abiding virtue. Even he holds a high office, Dr D P Singh, Chairman of University Grants Commission (UGC), carries no airs. He owns an easy smile, and a welcoming countenance. He is known for his straightforward approach and clear vision about higher education. But when he talks about those, Dr. Singh does not use jargon. His words are plain and polite, and he highlights issues in education in the manner of a scholar who refuses to brandish scholarship. Even though he is only one-and-a-half years old as Chairman, he has tried to make the best use of the time at hand to further the cause of streamlining university education in the country. Under his leadership, the UGC issued several regulations and guidelines that have changed the quality of higher education. 'The Hitavada' talked to Dr Singh on several issues related to higher learning in India and the apex body's role, as he was in Nagpur to deliver lecture organised by Kavikulguru Kalidas Sanskrit University on Friday.

Here are the excerpts:

UGC Chairman Dr D P Singh

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

Q: Can you brief us about your achievements in last one-and-a-half years?

Dr Singh: From Day One, I focussed on quality education. I would not like to take credit for whatever I have done. It is the UGC that does everything, and I am only an instrument. We issued several regulations to bring change in higher education in the last one year. We brought the concept of graded autonomy where autonomy to be awarded to the best-performing institution. We also introduced the system of bringing better quality in faculty. We want the faculty to upgrade itself with research. We want our universities to have student-centric approach and not merely be teacher-oriented. We also started taking steps towards bringing interdisciplinary approach to research. Now, there will be intra-university and inter-university collaborations for research.

Q.: There are a lot of complaints about quality in overall functioning of Open Universities and concept of distance learning is getting maligned. Have you spared some thought for this? Has this been brought to your notice? If 'yes', what do you propose to do in this regard?

Dr Singh: Yes. We did receive complaints about the functioning of Open Universities. There was no system of accreditation available for Open

UGC has asked NAAC to have accreditation framework for...

Universities and Distance Learning. I have asked National Accreditation and Assessment Council (NAAC) to prepare accreditation framework for Open Universities. It is in final stages. It is a matter of a few days and NAAC would start assessing Open Universities as well. Then everything will be streamlined. Everybody knows while getting accreditated every institute has to increase its level and Open Universities too will witness improvement.

Q.: There are still more than 80% institutions, including some varsities, that have not gone for NAAC accreditation. What action do you propose to bring everybody under NAAC umbrella?

Dr Singh: It is true. But, I don't want to take any coercive action. Because I feel if we do anything forcibly, the institutions die. We came up with the solution. Already there is a system of giving gradation to the universities. The institutions that don't go for accreditation will be mentored by the institutions that secured top gradation like A++ or A+. These institutions would mentor non-accredited institutions, so that every institution can get accreditation by 2022. Guidelines for mentoring of NAAC aspirant-institutions by a well-performing institution to promote quality assurance in higher education, 'PARAMARSH' has been introduced. Mentors as well as mentee institutions have been identified. It is proposed to conduct the programme in 300 institutions. Nearly 125 institutions have conveyed their willingness to be mentors and they have also submitted the names of their respective mentee institutions.

Q.: It is a usual scenario that students have lost academic connect in universities. The universities are merely playing the role of administrator. Are you planning any measures to establish a better academic connect of the students with the universities?

Dr Singh: The UGC has formulated a guide to Student Induction Programme, which is also available on the UGC website. The programme is designed to provide enabling environment to the students during their transition from School Education to Higher Education and promote their integration in new academic life, help them acclimatise with the ethos of new institution. Further, this shall serve as an opportunity for teachers and students to know one another and form a lasting bonding.

To spread awareness about Student Induction Programme (SIP), the UGC shall organize six programmes for the Training of Teachers (ToT), of about three days each for teachers nominated by the universities for getting trained.

The UGC has prepared a document on Learning Outcome-based Curriculum Framework after having consultation with various experts involved in the field, which is available on the UGC website. Its basic premise is to align the attributes to be attained by a graduate, with programme learning outcomes and academic standards. It is a student centric learning approach. LOCF aims to equip students with knowledge, skill, value and attitude.

Q.: In what way is the UGC promoting sports in universities?

Dr Singh: This is a good question. We want to focus on health of students. We want the universities to promote good health. We have prepared a framework for the quality enhancement of health of students. It will be a holistic approach. To the definition made by World Health Organisation of Health -- mental and physical wellbeing -- we added spiritual, psychological, social components. Health aspect will include games, yoga, meditation etc. We want to sensitise our students to have society-oriented thinking. They should be patriotic, and must possess high moral values.
